Roles and Responsibilities

Promoting the education of children with a social worker and children in kinship care arrangements: virtual school head role extension - GOV.UK
Although written for statutory school age, the principles remain highly relevant to post-16 providers supporting vulnerable young people.
The guidance promotes:

- Relationship-based practice
- High aspirations
- Understanding student's lived experience of social care
- Removing barriers to education
- Multi-agency working

Keeping Children Safe in education
KCSiE Keeping children safe in education - GOV.UK outlines the statutory duty that applies to all learners who are still children in law, regardless of whether they attend school, college, an apprenticeship provider, or another post-16 education setting.
For learners aged 16-18 who have a social worker, KCSiE reinforces the expectation that education providers understand vulnerabilities and have appropriate safeguarding and support arrangements in place.

Working Together to Safeguard Children
The Working together to safeguard children - GOV.UK guidance is a statutory framework issued by the Department for Education (DfE) in England. It outlines the responsibilities of organisations and agencies to work collaboratively to protect and promote the welfare of children.

Attendance, Participation and Engagement
Although statutory school attendance requirements end at the end of compulsory school age, the principles outlined in the Government's guidance on improving the attendance of children with a social worker remain relevant for post-16 learners. Young people with a social worker are at greater risk of disrupted education and disengagement from learning. Post-16 providers should monitor attendance and participation carefully, understand the barriers affecting engagement, and work collaboratively with social workers, carers and other professionals to support positive educational outcomes, retention and progression into adulthood.
